

We Are OpenMRS

We are OpenMRS.

We are your friends, neighbors, and community leaders who dream of a world where everyone has the opportunity to live a healthy life.
We are the doctors, nurses, and professionals who provide your health care.
We are the engineers, designers, and geeks who create technology you use every day.

We believe better health is possible when your information is available to the right people at the right time.
We also believe the most impactful health record systems are built locally by those who improve health in their communities.

So together, we are creating a new way to build and share free software that organizes your health information.
We also teach each other how to build health record systems in the places that need them the most.

Our global community combines our diverse backgrounds and skills to create marketplaces of innovation.
We want you to join our cause.

We are OpenMRS.

Together, we make health information useful for you, so we all can live healthier lives.