Google Summer of Code

Burke- I went to the Google Summer of Code page to try and hack it down into the actual projects that we are doing this summer. I made each of those a link, so we can have everybody make a page. The idea being that from that page we have a link to each individual project. The Google Summer of Code 2007 page would be the main starting page and from there everyone would link to their respective project page. We'll give people a template on how to go about laying that out.

Brief discussions about Google Summer of Code and project pages.

Meeting Adjourned

- Run through project pages (mentors descriptions of problem)
 - Publicly castigate Burke for not sending out an email reminding developers of this.
